Union County Convention.

All persons who are in favor of unconditionally sustaining the Administration in a vigorous prosecution of the war until the rebellion is finally suppressed are requested to meet in their several precincts (where delegates have not already been chosen) to choose delegates to a County Convention for Multnomah County to be held on Saturday the 7th day of May A D 1864 at the Court House in said county at one o'clock P M to nominate candidates for the Legislature and County Officers for said county, and to transact such other business as may be properly brought before the Convention

The Committee recommend one o'clock, Saturday, the 23d of April, as the time for holding Precinct Meetings

The several Precincts are entitled to the following number of delegates

Portland, April 5, 1864

The First Great Duty.

The great work pressing upon the Government now, is the destruction of the military power of the rebellion Nothing else is so important—so vital to the life of the Republic, for until the rebel army is captured or destroyed, there can be no peace, and no assurance of personal safety. While confronted by powerful armies standing in defiance with in a few leagues of the National capitol, and threatening not only to hold their own ground but, to drive our forces from the States which have been wrested from them, the sword the bayonet and the cannon ought to be the active and the immediate instruments employed Moral agencies are of great value and must be used, because they help the Union and weaken the rebellion They, however, are only auxiliaries, and of themselves can never accomplish the great result so ardently desired by every patriot.

We fear that in the anxious wish cherished by many, to get rid of slavery, and thus save the country from the possible recurrence of the woe and bloodshed, which it has brought upon the land, there may be some danger of overlooking the sharp and pressing work of the war The rebellion is a military assault, to be resisted and controlled mainly and primely by military action, and not to be regarded simply as a social evil, to be overcome by moral legislation Its strength is in its armies. These ought to be defeated, and that without delay; for while these exists, the peril of the Republic is imminent—its life is at hazard When these are overthrown, and even while active measures are taken to effect this, we cheerfully welcome all reasonable plans calculated to give strength to the Union and to secure it forever from the influence of sectional malcontents, but if the Administration and if Congress allows precious time in discussions which are not material and of festival in overpowering the enemy in arms, it seems to us possible that thus the difficulties of the land will be increased, without any sufficient advantage to the cause of freedom, or of the Republic

PUBLIC LANDS —We learn that David P Thompson, Esq, U. S. Deputy Surveyor, has recently selected, under authority from Gov. Gibbs, 118,161 42-100 acres of land for the uses of the State, as part of the donation of half a million acres made by Congress when Oregon was admitted to the Union. The land is in Baker county, and is represented to be favorably located, and of great prospective value. We have no doubt that Mr. Thompson exercised intelligent discretion and making the selection, and that the State is fortunate in having the benfit of his experience in such matters

UNION MEETING AT BELPASSI —We learn that an interesting patriotic meeting was held at the Belpassi Institute, on the 6th April, at which Messrs O Jacobs and S Colver, of Jackson county, made eloquent speeches, which were followed by addresses from others All seemed entirely satisfied with the work of the Albany Convention, and are disposed to confirm and ratify it at the polls in June next.

CURIOUS STATISTICS OF THE WAR.—Many curious statistics are being collected by the Sanitary Commission relating to the war, and a great deal of interest is evinced on all sides at the result of its investigations One of their maps gives the following number of men which have been called to arms in the North since the war commenced

	Demanded	Enlisted
April 16 1861, 3 months	75 000	78 876
May 4 1861, 3 years	42 000	64 748
July 22 1861, 3 years	500 000	725 000
July 11, 1862, 3 years	300 000	300 000
August 4, 1862, 9 months	300 000	300 000
Draft, 1863, 3 years	300 000	300 000
Draft, 1864, 3 years	500 000	200,000
Total demanded	2,002 623
Enlisted in the Navy		40 000
Total enlisted		3,017 000
Deduct re-enlisted men		100 000
		2,917 623

Now, the whole number of white males between the ages of 18 and 45 in all the States (seceded included) and in the Territories and District of Columbia, appears by the census tables of 1860, to be 5,624,065, of whom about one-third, or 1 874 688, were citizens of the seceded States, and two thirds, or 3, 749,377, citizens of the loyal States

Total number of white males in the United States between the ages of 18 and 45 in 1860	3 749 377
Gone to the war	1,907 623
Whole number remaining	1 841 754

Of these 1,841,754 men many are physically unable to endure the rigors of a campaign life, some are cripples, some deaf and dumb, or blind, some lunatics, and others unfortunates in reformatory institutions or convicts in prison.

Besides that there must be deducted the entire quota of California Oregon New Mexico Nebraska Dakota Utah Washington, Idaho, Nevada and Arizona which have furnished but few troops other than to protect the overland routes and garrison posts in the Indian country

These are the figures of 1860 It is true, but the natural increase of the fighting population since then has been fully balanced by the skedaddling or to use a less expressive but more elegant term the emigration of our people to other countries or to the Pacific coast.

It would be fair to conclude, then that there are not over a million of men in the United States to day available for the war This million comprises the great body of active workers those who must feed the army in the field, and provide for the young the old, and the women at home

But not deceived because in the large cities the population appears as numerous as ever In times of war the tendency of population is towards the great centres This is to escape the ravages of the conflict, to procure easy employment, and to take advantage of shifting values

A number of the troops called out at the commencement of the war and whose terms of service had expired, it should be borne in mind re-enlisted under the second and last call for men, which would somewhat reduce the estimate made by the Commission If those actually drawn from the population since the beginning of the rebellion They may have some item to offset this, but it does not appear The number of emigrants that have arrived from Europe and enlisted are not furnished nor are the negro troops counted in, but negroes when the last census was taken were not enumerated as among the arms bearing population, or citizens of the United States The report when completed will be full of interest and incident The statistics of killed and wounded have not yet been published.

THE ROBBERY IN THE TREASURY DEPARTMENT — The amount of Cornwall's robbery on the redemption bureau turns out to be at least $160,000 How much more he abstracted no one knows, nor is there any official method of ascertaining Taken to his house by two officers and there kept constantly in their presence, he at last broke down and confessed his crime, and indicated where the property could be found, a trunk containing $37,000 in five twenties, $4,000 in Treasury Notes and a large quantity of the cut halves of mutilated notes, which he had not time to assort, and which were awaiting the matching necessary to their passing as vouchers

After the discovery of his robbery he was kept in a room in the Treasury for two days, under surveillance and moral suasion He would confess nothing, and was sullen in his denial of guilt His repeatedly expressed desire to see his wife indicated the place of concealment of the stolen money, and he was taken to his house in Georgetown as mentioned His embarrassment has been going on for months The mutilated notes to be cancelled and subsequently burned, were cut lengthwise through the middle, one half went to Secretary Chase, the other to the Register. They were counted and summed up, according to their denominations, and if they compared with Cornwall's accounts were returned to his own office to be destroyed by fire

At the last burning, a little messenger boy, who had begged to watch the process, was attracted to see Cornwall occasionally slip a package of the half notes into the side pockets of his coat as he was throwing them into the furnace He innocently inquired of a clerk, named Platt, if Mr Cornwall had a right to do that thing. The game was up A trap was laid and the felon walked into it His avowed reason for plunging into this systematic robbery was his conviction that other Treasury clerks in responsible and confidential offices, were feathering their nests by stealing, and his determination was to have a hand in it A salary of only $1800 a year and a large family, with the immense cost of living here, helped the fool to take this view of his official rights and personal interests In each package he pocketed there was always one hundred bills Frequently they were demand notes of fives, tens, twenties, fifties, and even one hundreds Uncut notes, subsequently received and held back to an amount equal to these vouchers, made his hauls sometimes very great—ten or twenty thousand dollars Immense preparations for Christmas festivities had been made at his home and a daughter was soon to be married from it

WALLA WALLA ITEMS —The Statesman of the 2d inst., has the following items:

There is still considerable snow on the summit of the Blue mountains, and probably will be for some time to come though it is said to be no impediment whatever to travel

About 200 pack animals have left this city this week for Kootenai The packers who fitted out last week for Boise Head have changed their destination to Kootenai

Some parties direct from the States to South Boise mines purchased, while at Chicago a 12 stamp quartz mill and are having it brought by way of the Missouri river into that camp The mill is to be put up on the Idaho ledge

It is said that freight can be brought profitably from St. Louis to South Boise for 30 cts per pound If such prove to be the case a large portion of the supplies for the South Boise mines will no doubt hereafter be taken in that direction

The expedition to the Pluma will leave about the 15th of April—Capt G B Curry commanding Lieut. Pepoon goes as Quartermaster of the expedition

The first through stage from Boise arrived in this city on Friday evening 25th and the arrival was appropriately celebrated as per announcement by a torchlight procession, illuminations &c. Stages are now making trips both ways between this place and Boise

From a gentleman who arrived this week from Colville we learn advices of an undoubted character had been received there that three distinct mining camps have been discovered one of which is on a basin as large as that at Boise. The others are on the headwaters of the Kootenai on the eastern slope of the Carabou range of mountains and on both sides of the line dividing Washington Territory and British Columbia. The highest prospect spoken of by any one writing from there is fifty cents to the pan A Mr McLeod has written to a friend at Colville to abandon his farm and go to Kootenai, assuring him that he could do better

BOISE ITEMS —Wells, Fargo & Co furnish us the Boise News, of the 26th ult., from which we compile the following

Henry Grenthouse has in operation his long line of stages from Boise Basin to Walla Walla via the Columbia They are arriving, and departing every other day at and from Placerville and will come straight through to the city bringing the express and passengers An express messenger will ride through once and letter bags three times each week

The second of last Fall re-ballot for delegates to mand within a week past, by the bright fires that illuminate the various claims along the creeks at night since the water has been turned on Very little water will be allowed to escape this season, either by day or night without being used

In the District Court the jury in the case of the People vs Wiley, for the murder of Hall some time ago, brought in a verdict of murder in the second degree and that he be imprisoned in the Territorial penitentiary ten years George Owen for the murder of Perry Williams was found guilty of murder in the second degree and sentenced to the penitentiary for 20 years

FIRST DISAPPOINTMENT —The steamer John H Couch made a successful passage to Fort Disappointment with troops and munitions, returning yesterday about 10 o'clock A M The site of the new Fort is represented as one of importance

Union State Convention in California.

We have no room for the proceedings in full, but the following resolution is so appropriate, that we cannot but approve it, while we regret that something similar was not suggested in our own State Convention:

Mr D Bee from the committee on Resolutions made a report [illegible] the following resolution of [illegible]

Resolved That in the death of the Reverend Thomas Starr King, California has lost her brightest orna ments and a most pure Patriot He was a true patriot an accomplished orator a brave defender of freedom and an earnest champion of human rights By his untiring zeal patriotic counsels and fearless eloquence he contributed to the Union sentiment of this State while to him is due the highest honor of the Sanitary Fund which has become dear to every soldier's heart and a synonym of unselfish benevolence We deeply mourn his loss It cannot be repaired to the State but the memory of his good deeds will live after him as long as patriotism and virtue have a home in the human heart We tender our condolence to the bereaved family and request the secretary to furnish them with a copy of this resolution

The resolution was adopted in silence as every member rose

After the election of delegates was effected, some of the persons selected spoke as follows

SPEECH OF THOMPSON CAMPBELL

Mr President and Gentlemen of the Convention It is with no ordinary feeling of gratitude that I return to you my sincere thanks for the confidence which you have so generously reposed in me and I can only say in return for the high honor, that I shall ask that there may a great State and a great party I will fail fully and honestly and honorably discharge the high trust which you have seen fit to confer I rejoice exceedingly at the end and aim of which is to animate and re elect that great man of the times and preserver of the country Abraham Lincoln [Loud applause] When you look at the Abraham Lincoln of to day and the Abraham Lincoln of four years ago and consider the fiery ordeal through which he has passed the events he has met the history that has been made and reflect that upon every page of it [illegible] name is indelibly stamped, who is there that does not see the workings of an inscrutable Providence guiding directing, and shaping the minds of the people for the selection of his own chosen instruments to carry out his great lessons in the terrible conflict which is now being waged between freedom and slavery [applause] and which to resist would be almost like opposing the revealed decrees of heaven [Applause] A leading journal in New York has taken ground against the re nomination of Mr Lincoln, not on the ground of his unfitness nor because he has not been clear in his great office but on the ground that the President should not be elected for more than one term In ordinary times this is a good and salutary rule It closes the door against the vice of using the highest office in the world for ambitious and personal ends But can it not be said that since the days of Washington no man has occupied an eminence so high and so pure in this particular as the present Chief Magistrate of this nation? [Applause] Is this then a time to displace a man to whom all confide? Standing as we do, on the very bank and shoal of destiny can we afford to experiment? Can we afford in these times to exchange a tried leader for an untried one? Can we afford to set out another unknown to the people when the people have tried a man and found him not wanting in every part? To such then has place "Abraham and the man and Providence has provided us with both [Applause] In selecting, in nominating Mr Lincoln the nation is not unjust to other noble patriots whose names have been associated with Presidential honors The noble Secretary of the Treasury stands at the head of this list. His name will for ever occupy a place on the brightest page of his country's history To his unequalled financial genius, incorruptible integrity untiring thought, and sleepless devotion to the cause of his country are to be attributed the greatest financial success which the world has ever witnessed and who is there that can even contemplate, without being appalled the terrible consequences which might have resulted to our country from a great financial failure? Then I say to each his place Chase is to Lincoln what Lincoln is to the country—indispensable [Applause] In this hot his great strength—that which others accomplish by political strategy he has achieved unlookingly achieved by a faithful discharge of duties involving the very existence of the country Has he not been tried as never man was tried? Every test of statesmanship, every test of ability every test of honesty every test of the highest administrative powers every test of true patriotism has been applied to him and they have only served in their turn to bring out the refined gold of his character, knitting him closer and closer to the people until the public heartstrings are so entwined about him that to now give him up would seem like giving up the cause of our country [Applause] It is not for me to to detain you on an occasion like this with the character of this great man He is now as it was said of the great Washington If he is not first in war and first in peace he will be first in peace—a glorious peace, a conquered peace and he is this day first in the hearts of his countrymen [Cheers and applause.] I might run out this line till it reached the rank and file of that great army of freemen who are this day confronting the armed legions of treason and with clenched teeth fearless, determined and resolute will, bearing that terrible but welcomeland cheering word 'Charge' [Applause] And they who have left home and friends and wife and children and all that is dearest in life shall they not be heard? And that great army too of the dead whose bones now whiten every battle field, they, too will live, and live on in the grateful hearts of their countrymen, never to be forgotten [applause], and in after times he who can with whom I was more proud to select me with the other noble guide in whom I am proud to lean associated with and will when I believe we will be able to maintain the honor of California and of the great party to which I belong, when we assemble in the grand council of the nation [Applause]

SPEECH OF M C BRIGGS

Rev M C Briggs was conducted to the platform amid great cheering

The President —Gentlemen of the Convention I have the pleasure of introducing to you the fighting preacher the Rev M C Briggs

M C Briggs —Mr President and Gentlemen You will easily believe that if I station's never anticipated any thing of the kind when I was invited to address you But I have never considered it a disgrace to be associated on an occasion of any political character as I am ready to defend them [Applause] But hereafter I have such only associated with me I should protest that I would not [illegible] any thing that would prostitute my clerical profession [illegible] to the fact that such a mark of confidence is very gratifying to me I do not deny that it will be a pleasure to me, to undertake to fulfil my duties in the known preferences of the Union men of California in the National Convention at Baltimore [Applause] Although I feel conscious of a want of that experience that judgment and experience which the Bishops who have given their lives to public service yet if I fail in anything I am sustained by the confidence I feel that the gentlemen who honor with me will make the [illegible] allowances for my deficiencies Those who [illegible] know I am not fortuitous in my principles on National questions I am not fortuitous in being faithful with regard to them I was not capable of concealing my sentiments when the vital interests of my country were concerned and in the pulpit and on the platform I have stood up on every suitable opportunity to speak boldly at least, and as well as I could for the cause of my country and the Union [Applause] The allusion of your President has conferred I am one certainly a new title [applause and laughter]—the allusion to anything like a pugnacious temper I must beg leave to decline I will accept the name, but I do not love fighting I never contributed any set of opinions because I delighted in debate and strife and turmoil But for my love of human kind my love of human freedom, and my love of the country that has nourished me and the Government that has shielded me, I would have let everybody run his own way

But for the sake of my race for the sake and honor of my kind I have commanded all these years the right of free speech the freeman's birthright every where [Applause] And I am more than happy to have lived to see the moment when that right is accorded to me without the finger of fear, even, without hisses and epithets [illegible] without—where is my friend Avery?—without the donation of rotten eggs [Laughter and applause] Yes my true hearted friends times have changed since we used to carry a very unpleasant odor [Great laughter] I received a certificate of your approbation to day not as accorded to my personal worthiness—I am a man of peace and I sought for the sake of peace [cheers]—but I receive it as a strong testimonial of your approval of those sentiments which I cherish in common with all the Union men of California I could not have consented to represent a faction anywhere and if you could make me believe at this late moment—for being necessarily engaged elsewhere I have not been a witness of your deliberations—that I was expected to do that service to represent a faction not a party, I should beg to decline your honor [Applause.] It is needless to define my views as to the great questions of National policy now You propose to send us on a specific mission you have signified your preference for myself I have an appointment, made on the 4th day of July, 1863 to address the citizens of Santa Clara on the 4th day of July, 1864, with the banner of my country waving over every fortress which has been wrested from us by traitors and polluted by foul conspiracies of the enemies of our country [Applause] I therefore need not say that I wish to have some humble part in the re nomination of the present Chief Magistrate for another term made, if possible, even more glorious than the present I would not consent to place a wise and good untried man in the place of a good and wise tried man in such an emergency [Cheers] I fortunately heard a few sentences of the last address and I concur most heartily in the one sentiment—Chase is as necessary to Lincoln as Lincoln to the country [Applause] It would be my desire that Chase should continue to occupy the eminent place which he has distinguished by services unparalleled to that department of our country's Government. But, now and always, first and last and intermediately so long as there remains a glimmer of a hope that Abraham Lincoln can be re-nominated for another term, I cast my suffrage for him all the while [Cheers] With respect to the subordinate functionaries of the Government, I adopt this simple rule—I do not ask it because you ask me to announce it, but because I have a fixed and cherished principle of action—sustain most heartily the men who served his country with most capable and faithful press, irrespective of political antecedents [Cheers and applause] He who has been brave enough to endure the ordeal of these past years and months and weighed in the balance has not been found wanting, I endorse to day, and every day and every where [Applause] If there shall arise a time when we may make our selections and gratify our preferences, if there shall come that time—as come it will as certain as God reigns, and truth has power, and freedom is deathless in the convictions of the human soul—when that time shall come I shall be ready to release from his toils after another term, if need be the valiant man who has borne the weight of the Presidency so nobly and well, and you may command me as to the choice of another man But now I repeat what I have said, 'I last well enough alone' [Great cheering] Gentlemen, I am surprised at myself I am more I am astonished I came here in the extremest embarrassment I thought I could throw into ten sentences all I had to say or you the patience to hear And now I must not suffer myself to become excited and stimulated into a speech [Applause and laughter] I thank you, all of you,—for I do not know one man who voted aye, or one who voted no and I don't mean to know [Applause] I intend to assume that every freeman in this Convention, and every lover of his country and every man that cherishes a hope of that glorious time when no legalized oppression shall hover over the country without burning shame [illegible] for me [Applause.] I mean to claim that you all voted for me And so, gentlemen, I thank you all, every man of you, for the mark of your confidence I thank you for the generous and unexpected favor of this very fruitful friendship although it has charged me with so heavy a responsibility Mr President I thank you and the Convention for the patience with which you have listened to me [Applause and cheers]

IN THE SIGN WE CONQUER —Jno W Noell, the pioneer of practical emancipation in Congress received fitting tributes in the House yesterday—He was a happy illustration of how devotion to a pro simple elevates and ennobles But for one brave feature in his life, Mr Noell would have gone down to an untimely grave with the millions of others whose membership in Congress does not secure from obscurity He was not a great man he was not a cultivated man there was almost nothing about him from the common level of Congressional mediocrity But it was high honor that these words of Mr Thad Stevens could be truthfully spoken of him when he said of him

"Others more favored by education and association may have been earlier advocates of universal liberty but who's done future That title shall write the history of this eventful period he will record on its brightest page in golden capitals that John W Noell of Missouri was the first member from a slave State who introduced in Congress a bill to abolish slavery

He was not one of that dignified and conservative class that can bear the misery and oppression of others with such grace if forbearance He was no sufficiently philosophic to understand how the best way to cure the horrid condemnation for freedom was to prolong their slavery

He did not live to see the consummation of the great object of his heart O how more eloquent than he only have been called to the bar of judgment but a man of equal ability before that dread tribunal with more humane and ardent advocates He only cries out for the oppressed of every nation the exile of the nation the victim of slavery

Who will not rather take the chance in the great mass of accounts before the Judge who is the whitest Paths of all men from the chance of the critics—unscrupulous wretches—who [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] who fastens his life on a great principle has taken hold on a sure renown that will not die no brilliancy of talent [illegible] industry of loose ed labor, could secure —Cincinnati Gazette, 10th inst

Owens, Infantry, has 27, and Capt Caldwell, Cavalry, has 63 The business of the Quartermaster's department we found in a "pressing" condition, and we think Capt Hopkins must have strong nerves to stand it so well It is pretty nearly true that one must have "the patience of Job, the wisdom of Solomon, and do a vast deal of hard work," to keep such papers correct The Common Council of Vancouver have taken the initiatory steps to secure the city a good wharf, for which purpose an appropriation of $10,000 has been made and all moneys received from licenses, etc, in addition to a 5 mill tax, are paid into the Treasury to disburse that amount The work will be pushed through with all possible speed, and the citizens intend to make one effort at least to redeem their city from its apparent doom The District Court, of Washington Territory, has just closed its session in Vancouver. The case of Mrs Edwards, charged with murdering her husband, was decided against her, and she is under sentence to be executed on the 20th of May Pirch has been indicted as an accessory, and will be tried at the next term of court

A BLIGHTING SHAME —A man in convict costume, carrying an infant in his arms, accompanied by his wife and a friend, passed along the crowded streets yesday, attracting some attention from the strangeness of such apparel The man had apparently been discharged from prison, and those with him had come to escort him home That he were so conspicuous an evidence of his disgrace and shame, could only be accounted for by his utter destitution of any other clothing It occurs to us to inquire if the humane and wealthy commonwealth of Oregon cannot afford to give all discharged convicts a decent garment, and a small sum of money, so as to shield them for a time from the temptation of crime, as a means of support We are under the impression such a regulation is adhered to in many of the States—the lowest impulse of humanity would seem to recommend it in all

BOISE EXPRESS —Mr West, of Walls, Fargo & Co's Express, arrived on the steamer Wilson G Hunt last evening, bringing with him an abundance of letters, and about one hundred and fifty pounds of gold dust The Boise Express came through in ten days, and from Lewiston we have an Express in five days time This could have been shortened at least two days, had fair weather prevailed on the Columbia A letter Express leaves Walla Walla three times a week for Boise, on the coaches, and arrives as often, with an addition of a treasure Express once a week

A YOUNG SPORTSMAN—Master Francis Marion Brown, a youth about eight years of age, son of Samuel Brown, Esq, of Belpassi, in this State, saw a Bald Eagle alight in a tree, at that place a few days since, when he hurried to the house, secured a rifle, and shot at it, wounding it so that it was taken and killed The Eagle measured seven feet from tip to tip, and weighed 13 pounds

THEATRE —There will be no performance this evening the company being engaged in the preparation of the magnificent play of 'Leah the Forsaken," for to morrow evening We are sure that the public will be amply rewarded, who witness the fine spectacle, and listen to the sensational and really interesting plot of the play as developed It will be new to our citizens and will be as good as it is new

THE DROWNED SOLDIER —The soldier spoken of as having fallen overboard and drowned, from the steamer Julia on Tuesday, was named Phas Whitehurst, his age was about 45 years Mr Whitehurst was much esteemed by his comrades, and the officers in command at the Fort, for his noble disposition, and his loss is much regretted He has relatives and friends at Springfield, Illinois

A VISIT TO VANCOUVER.—We paid Vancouver a short visit yesterday, going and coming by the steamer Wilson G. Hunt. The day being very pleasant while there, afforded us opportunities for observation, which were improved. Vancouver is ahead of Portland in some things, strange though it may appear—first, the streets are cleaner and better; a person can ride out there anywhere, without the fear of being stuck in the mud. Next, there is some attraction about the common, the green sward is very inviting, and we don't blame our "marriageable" people for escaping from Oregon to be bound by hymen's chains in a more truly rural and romantic. A wedding at Maine-ha-ha would be nothing to compare to a wedding at Vancouver. There is very little doing there—the place is very dull—and were it not for the business attending the garrison, would be an extraordinary "dry" town in all that relates to life and activity. The majority of the troops that have been stationed there during the past winter have gone in pursuit of Snake Indians—only about ninety men remaining: Capt. Owens, Infantry, has 27, and Capt. Caldwell, Cavalry, has 2. The business of the Quartermaster's department we found in a "pressing" condition, and we think Capt. Hopkins must have strong nerves to stand it so well. It is pretty nearly true that one must have the patience of Job, the wisdom of Solomon, and do a vast deal of hard work, to keep such papers correct. The Common Council of Vancouver have taken the initiatory steps to secure the city a good wharf, for which purpose an appropriation of $10,000 has been made, and all moneys received from licenses, etc., in addition to a land tax, are paid into the Treasury to liquidate that amount. The work will be pushed rapidly with all possible speed, and the citizens intend to make one effort at least to retain their city from its apparent doom. The District Court, of Washington Territory, has enclosed its session in Vancouver. The case of Mrs. Edwards, charged with murdering her husband, was decided against her, and is under sentence to be executed on the 20th of May. Pisoh has been indicted as an accessory, and will be tried at the next term thereof.

A RIGHTFUL SHARE.—A man in convict dress carrying an infant in his arms, accompanied by his wife, and a friend, passed along the crowded street yesterday, attracting some attention from the strangeness of such events. The man had apparently been discharged from prison, and those with him had come to escort him home. That he wore so much as an evidence of his disgrace and shame, could only be accounted for by his utter destitution of any other clothing. It occurs to us to inquire if the humane and wealthy commonwealth of Oregon cannot afford to give all discharged convicts a decent garment, and a small sum of money, so as to assist them for a time from the temptation of crime, as a means of support. We are under the impression such a regulation is adhered to in many of the States—the lowest impulse of humanity would seem to recommend it in all.

EXPRESS.—Mr. West, of Wells, Fargo & Co.'s Express, arrived on the steamer Wilson G. Hunt last evening, bringing with him a abundance of letters, and about one hundred and fifty pounds of gold dust. The Express came through in ten days, and from Lewiston we have an Express in five days time. This could have been shortened at least two days, had fair weather prevailed on the Columbia. A letter Express leaves Walla Walla three times a week for Boise, on the Owyhee, and arrives as often, with an additional Express once a week.

A YOUNG SPORTSMAN.—Master Francis Marion Boyer, a youth about eight years of age, son of Samuel Brown, Esq., of Belpassi, in this State, saw a Bald Eagle alight in a tree, near his place a few days since, when he hurried to the house, secured a rifle, and shot at the bird as it was ascending it so that it was taken and killed. The Eagle measured seven feet from tip to tip, and weighed 13 pounds.

THEATRE.—There will be no performance this evening, the company being engaged in the preparation of the magnificent play of "Lesh the Forsaken," for to-morrow evening. We are sure that the public will be amply rewarded, who witness the fine spectacle, and listen to the sensational and really interesting plot of the play as developed. It will be new to our citizens and will be as good as it is new.

THE DECEASED SOLDIER.—The soldier spoken of as having fallen overboard and drowned from the steamer Julia on Tuesday, was named Thos Whitehurst, his age was about 45 years. Mr. Whitehurst was much esteemed by his comrades, and the officers in command at the Fort, for his noble disposition, and his loss is much regretted. He has relatives and friends at Springfield, Illinois.

THE WILSON G. HUNT.—This reliable craft, under the efficient guardianship of Captain Wells and Purser Day, is doing immense service for the travelling community, and at the same time is making money rapidly for her owners. On the upward trip yesterday she was loaded plump to the guards with freight and passengers, a portion of which was from Fort Vancouver, consisting of government freight.

A DESERTION.—A pleasant little surprise party "sensational" character, was tendered to Lieut. H. Atkinson and his lady, last evening. Such manifestations are true tokens of appreciation.

CLOSED.—The Industry and Alma put to gether, on Sunday last.

ARRIVAL OF THE FALKENBERG.—The barkentine Jane A. Falkenberg, Capt. James Frost Master, arrived yesterday in tow of the John H. Couch. She brings a heavy freight, and we understand has encountered severe gales during the entire passage.

FIRE DELEGATE.—Mr. E. J. DeHart was chosen by Multnomah Fire Company, No. 2, last evening, to represent them in the Board of Delegates, in place of Mr. Semple, who has resigned and gone to the Boise mines.

OREGON LITERATURE.—Oregon has never as yet, contributed much in the line of book publications, to show the acquaintance of her people with letters or learning, but a recent order for 5,000 copies of a work may be considered a pretty good starter. This order will be filled at the office of the Oregon Farmer in Portland.

OUR NEW SIGN.—The new sign of the DAILY and WEEKLY OREGONIAN Office, put up at the corner of Washington and First street yesterday, was painted by Mr. Charles S. Mills. There is no necessity of our telling people to notice it, as everybody can see it.

Fenian Brotherhood.—Circle No. 1 of the Fenian Brotherhood will meet on Monday evening next, at Hibernian Hall, at 7 o'clock.

HOSTETTER'S
CELEBRATED
STOMACH BITTERS.
CONCLUSIVE PROOF
OF THE EFFICACY OF HOSTETTER'S
STOMACH BITTERS!
PROTECTIVE MEDICATION
Great Truths
—IN—
SMALL COMPASS!

WHAT THE BITTERS ARE.
A pure, delightful, Vegetable Balm,
To cheer the spirits and the nerves to calm,
Protect the system from Miasma's bane,
Rouse torpid Nature and the strength sustain.

ITS INGREDIENTS.
Juices of plants, roots, barks, of virtues rare,
By chemic art expressed with patient care,
And the mild spirit of the soundest rye—
Purest of all diffusive stimuli.

RESULTS OF THEIR USE.
Digestion, rallies, appetite revives,
The food assimilates, the patient thrives,
Dyspepsia vanishes, with all its throes,
And peaceful sleep succeeds disturbed repose.

EFFECTS ON THE LIVER.
The bilious sufferer, languid, listless, pale,
Physicked for years, perhaps, without avail,
Finds in the BITTERS all he seeks or needs,
And lives to smile at doctors and their creeds.

OPERATION ON THE BOWELS.
Relaxed, constricted, or the seat of pain,
These organs should not, for one day, remain.
The cause of each extreme you can expel—
The BITTERS tone and regulate as well.

EFFECT ON THE DEBILITATED.
The flaccid muscles firmness soon acquire,
The frame gains flesh, the eye resumes its fire,
Strength to the limbs, hope to the heart returns,
Till staff and crutch the convalescent spurns.

BROKEN CONSTITUTION.
The constitution tried by pain or care,
Or wild indulgence, is but repair:
The genial Tonic, its the healthful dews
Quickens parched herbs, its wasted power renews.

CHILLS AND FEVER.
Damp, cold, exposure to the malarious fog,
Brings on of ills a fearful catalogue;
But intermittents, whatsoe'er their kind,
HOSTETTER'S BITTERS scatter to the wind.

SICK HEADACHE.
This torment dire, that all enjoyment kills,
Yields not to pungent scents or drastic pills,
'Tis from the stomach that it takes its rise;
Tone with the BITTERS, and the anguish flies.

WANT OF APPETITE.
Without due nourishment life's pulses wane,
The blood recruits, the weary skeleton,
And "Good Digestion waits on Appetite."

THE BITTERS AFTER SICKNESS.
Exhausting fever leaves its victim low,
And, unassisted, Health's return is slow;
Then with the Bitters weakened Nature aid,
For in each drop vitality's conveyed.

AS A GENERAL PREVENTIVE.
By night and day, on river, sea or land,
In instant peril of disease we stand;
But as dread arrows harmless seem to glide
Past all with this invigorant fortified.

IMPURE WATER, ETC.
Roam through the world, through every climate
Here is the antidote against every change, [range,
Water impure it tempers, and insures
Men in all hardships to all temperatures.

SEA SICKNESS.
Who has not felt how feebly words essay
The qualms one feels on shipboard to portray?
Dread them no more, defy old Neptune's power,
The Bitters cure the nausea in an hour.

AN UNADULTERATED TONIC.
Of all the liquors borne across the sea
Not one—mark that—from acrid poison's free,
These Bitters stand mid stimulants alone,
Powerless to irritate, though prompt to tone.

A MILD APERIENT.
Remember, too, aperient root and herb,
Are blent with those that relaxation curb
In this rare mixture; give this fact due weight,
That while the Bitters tone, they regulate.

A GENTLE CORRECTIVE.
If on the stomach food to acid turns,
And pungent gas the inner membrane burns,
This grand corrective soon removes the bane,
And from the heartburn frees the inner man.

A SAFE AND GENTLE ANODYNE.
Why not with all the opiates dispense,
That shake the nerves and paralyze the sense,
When those rare BITTERS soothe both mind and frame,
Inviting both to yield to slumbers claim?

THE WORLD'S OPINION.
Touching the BITTERS, this, grand fact is clear,
Their fame fills all the Western Hemisphere.
Known in all lands, washed by its oceans twain,
HEALTH, Hope and Vigor, follow in their train!

AVOID COUNTERFEITS.
HOSTETTER'S BITTERS share the common fate
Of all things good. Impostors imitate,
Of these beware. Discreetly use your eyes,
From honest houses purchase your supplies.

CAUTION!
The Government Endorsement.
In order to guard against the impositions, the public are requested to take especial note of the beautifully engraved proprietary stamp, through which the Government of the United States officially authenticates every bottle of HOSTETTER'S BITTERS. This shield, thrown by the Government over the proprietors and the public for their joint protection, is placed conspicuously across the cork and over the neck of each bottle, and cannot fail to strike the eye of the most casual observer. Nothing that purports to be HOSTETTER'S BITTERS can be genuine unless the stamp is there.
It is also proper to state that the BITTERS are sold exclusively in glass, and never under any circumstance by the gallon or the barrel. Impostors and imitators are abroad, and the only safeguard the public have against them is to see that the bitters they buy bear the engraved label and note of Messrs HOSTETTER & SMITH, and the stamp above mentioned.

City and Country.

There is a pleasure in the city
For those who love its strife
But give me the greater joy
Of a quiet country life.

In the city all is racket,
Rustle, hustle and crush;
And few have any thought-, except
For making the "grand cash."

In the country all is quiet,
And beautiful and grand;
And the farmers, rough and hearty,
Are a social, kindly band.

In the city your next neighbor
Is striving all the while
To get the better of you,
By bonds-y or guild.

In the country, all your neighbors,
Through scattered far above,
Whenever you're in trouble,
Will try to help you out.

In the city, the young women
Race their brains down in their heels,
And never feel emotion
Save when a fiddle squeals.

In the country, the young women
Stay at home and do their work,
And though they slight the "parties,"
From the wash-tub never shirk.

In the city, the young maidens,
Though a la mode their neck,
Are smart but in frivolity,
And in common sense are green.

In the country, the young maidens,
(The loveliest ever seen,)
Are sensible, and useful too,
Though in fashion's follies green.

Then choose all who like, the city,
Give me a country life,
With a blooming country maiden,
For a gentle, faithful wife.

The Puritan Minister.

It is nine o'clock on Sunday morning, in the year sixteen hundred and something. The sun looks down brightly on a little forest settlement, around whose expanding fields the great American wilderness recedes each day, withdrawing its bears and wolves and Indians into an even remoter distance, not yet so far but that a stout wooden gate at each end of the village street indicates that there is something outside that must stay outside, if possible. It would look very busy and thriving in this little place to-day, but for the Sabbath stillness which broods over everything with almost an excess of calm. Even the smoke ascends more faintly than usual from the chimneys of these abundant log-huts and scanty-framed houses, and since three o'clock yesterday afternoon not a stroke of this world's work had been done. Last night a preparatory lecture was held, and now comes the consummation of the whole week's life, in the solemn act of worship. In which settlement of the Massachusetts Colony is the great observance to pass before our eyes? If it be Cambridge village, the warning drum is beating its peaceful summons to the congregation. If it be Salem village, a bell is sounding its more ecclesiastical peal, and a red flag is simultaneously hung forth from the meeting house, like the auction flag of later periods, but offering in this case goods without money and beyond price. But if it be Haverhill village, then Abraham Tyler has been blowing his horn assiduously for half an hour, a service for which Abraham, each year, receives a half pound of pork from each family in town.

Be it drum, bell or horn which gives the summons, we will draw near to this important building, the centre of the village, the one public edifice—meeting-house, town-house, school-house, watch-house, all in one. So important is it, that no one can legally dwell half a mile from it. And yet the people ride to meeting, short though the distance be, for at yonder oaken block, a wife dismounts from behind her husband, or Indian corn-sacks, shillings on fast trotting to and fro? All sins are not modern ones, young gentlemen.

We approach nearer still, and come among the civil institutions. This is the pillory, yonder the stocks, and there is a large wooden cage, a terror to evil-doers, but let us hope empty now. Round the meeting house is a high wooden paling, to which the law permits citizens to tie their horses, provided it be not too near the passage way. For at that opening stands a sentry, clothed in a suit of armor which is painted black, and cost the town twenty-four shillings by the bill. He bears also a heavy matchlock musket; his rest, or iron fork, is stuck in the ground, ready to support the weapon; and he is girdled with his bandoleer, or broad leather belt, which sustains a sword and a dozen tin cartridge boxes.

The meeting-house is the second to which the town has treated itself, the first having been a "timber fort, both strong and comely, with flat roof and battlements,"—a cannon on top, and the cannonade of the gospel down below. But this one cost the town sixty-three pounds, hard-earned pounds, and carefully expended. It is built of brick and smeared outside with clay, and finished with clapboards, outside of all. It is about twenty-five feet square, with a chimney half the width of the building and projecting four feet above the thatched roof. The steeple is in the centre, and the bell-rope, if they have one, hangs in the middle of the aisle. There are six windows, two on each of the two sides, and two more at the ends, part being covered with oiled paper only, part glazed in numerous small panes. And between the windows, on the outside, hang the heads of all the wolves that have been killed in the township within a year. But the Quakers think that the wolves have cheated the parish and got inside, in sheep's clothing.

The people are assembling. The Governor has passed by, with his four vergers bearing halberds before him. The French Popish ambassadors, who have just arrived from Canada, are told the customs of the place, and left to stay quietly at the Governor's house, with sweetmeats, wines and the liberty of a private walk in the garden. The sexton has just called for the minister, as is his duty twice every Sunday, and, removing his cocked hat, he walks before his superior officer. The minister enters and passes up the aisle, dressed in Geneva cloak, black skull-cap, and black gloves open at the thumb and finger, for the better handling of his manuscript. He looks round upon his congregation, a few hundred, recently seated anew for the year, arranged according to rank and age. There are old men in the pews beneath the pulpit. There are the young men in the gallery, or near the door, with ruffs, showy belts, gold and silver buttons, "points" at the knees and great shoes. There are the young women, with "silk or tiffany hoods or scarfs, embroidered or needle worked caps, immoderate great sleeves, cut works—a mystery—slack apparel"—another mystery—but all recorded in the statutes which forbids these splendors to persons of mean estate. There are the wives of the magistrates in prominent seats, and the grammar-school master's wife next them; and in each pew, close to the mother's elbow, is the little wooden cage for the youngest child, still too young to sit alone. All the boys are held too young to sit alone also; for though the ominous grandeur of Holland the aged deaconess who there presided, birch in hand, to control the rising generation in Sunday meetings, yet the urchins are now herded on the pulpit and gallery stairs, with four constables to guard them from the allurements of sin. And there sits Sin itself, embodied in the shrinking form of some humiliating man or woman, placed on a high stool in the principle aisle, bearing the name of some dark crime written on paper and pinned to the garments, or perhaps a Scarlet Letter on the breast.

Oh, the silence of this place of worship, after the solemn service sets in! "People do not sneeze or cough here in public assemblies," says one writer triumphantly, "so much as in England." The warning caution, "Be short," which the minister has inscribed above his study door claims no authority over his pulpit. He may pray his hour, unpausing, and no one thinks it long: for, indeed, at prayer meetings four persons will sometimes pray an hour each—one with confession, one with private petitions, a third with petition for church and kingdom, and a fourth with thanksgiving—neither part of the quartette being for an instant confused with the other. Then he may preach his hour, and, turning his hour-glass, may say—but that he will not anticipate the levity to be born in a later century with Mather Byles—"now, my hearers we will take another glass."

In short, this is the pomp and circumstance of glorious preaching. Woe to any one who shall disturb its proprieties! It is written in the statute, "if any one interrupt or oppose a preacher in season of worship, they shall be reproved by the magistrate, and on repetition shall pay £5, or stand on a block four feet high, with this inscription in capitals, "A Wanton Gospeller." Nor this alone, but the law stands by the minister's doctrine even out of the meeting-house. It is but a few days since Nathaniel Hadlock was sentenced to be severely whipped for declaring that he could receive no profit from Mr. H——'s preaching—since Thomas Maule was mauled to the extent of ten stripes for declaring that Mr. H—— preached lies, and that his instruction was the doctrine of devils—since even the wife of Nicholas Phelps was sentenced to pay £5 or be whipped, for asserting that this same Mr. H—— sent abroad his wolves and bloodhounds among the sheep and lambs. Truly, it is a perilous thing to attend public worship in such reverential days. However, it is equally dangerous to stay at home; there are tithing-men to look after the absentees, and any one unnecessarily absent must pay five shillings. He may be put in the stocks or in the wooden cage, if delinquent, for a month together.

But we must give our attention to the sermon. It is what the congregation will pronounce 'a large, nervous and golden discourse,' a scriptural discourse—like the skeleton of a sea-serpent, all backbone, and a great deal of that. It may be some very famous and special effort. Perhaps Increase Mather had been preaching on "The Morning Star," or on "Snow," or on "The Voice of God in Stormy Winds," or it may be his sermon entitled "Burnings Bewhiled," to improve the lesson of some great conflagration, which he attributes partly to Sabbath breaking and partly to the new fashion of monstrous periwigs. Or it may be Cotton Mather, his son, rolling forth his resounding discourse during a thunder-storm, entitled "Brantologia Sacra"—consisting of seven seperate divisions or thunder-bolts, and filled with sharp lightning from Scripture and the Rabbinnical lore, and Cartesian natural philosophy. Just as he has proclaimed, "In the thunder there is the voice of the glorious God," a messenger comes hastening in, as in the Book of Job, to tell him that his own house has just been struck, and though no person is hurt, yet the house hath been much torn and filled with the lightnings. With what joy and power he instantly wields above his audience this providential surplus of excitement, reminding one irresistibly of some scientific lecturer who has clearly blown himself up by his own experiments, and proceeds beaming with fresh confidence, the full power of his compound being incontestably shown. Rising with the immergency, he tells how a magnet which the thunder changed instantly from North to South, as it were well if the next bolt could change their stubborn souls from Satan to God. But afterward he is compelled to own that Satan also is permitted to have a hand in the thunder which is the reason why it breaks often on churches than any other buildings; and again he admits, pensively, at last that churches and ministers' houses have undoubtedly the larger share.

The sermon is over. The more demoralized among the little boys, whose sleepy eyes have been more than once admonished by the hare's foot wand of the constable—the sharp paw is used for the boys, and the soft fur is kept for the smooth foreheads of drowsy maidens—look up thoroughly awakened now. Bright eyes glance from beneath silk or tiffany hoods, for a little interlude is coming. Many things may happen in this pause after the sermon. Questions may be asked of the elders now, which the elders may answer—if they can. Some lay brother may "exercise" on a text of scripture—rather severe exercise it sometimes turns out. Candidates for the church may be proposed. A baptism may take place. If at be the proper month, the law against profaning the Sabbath may be read. The last town regulations may be read; or, far more exciting, a new marriage may be published. Or a darker scene may follow, and some offending magistrate may be required to stand upon a bench, in his worst garments, with a foul linen cap drawn close to his eyes, and acknowledge his sins before the pious people, who reverenced him so lately. These things done, a deacon says impressively, "Brethren, now there is time for contribution; wherefore as God hath prospered you, so freely offer." Then the people in the gallery come down and march two abreast, "up one aisle and down the other," passing before the desk, where in a long pew sit the elders and deacons. One of these holds a money-box, into which the worshipers put their offerings, usually varying from one to five shillings, according to their ability and good-will. Some give paper pledges instead; and others give other valuables, such as "a fair guilt cup, with a cover," for the communion service. Then comes a psalm, read, line after line, by some one appointed, out of the "Bay Psalm-Book," and sung by the people. These psalms are sung regularly through, four every Sunday, and some ten tunes compose the whole vocal range of the congregation. Then comes the words, "Blessed are they who hear the word of the Lord and keep it," and then the benediction.

And then the reverend divine descends from his desk and walks down the aisle, bowing gravely right and left to his people, not one of whom stirs until the minister has gone out; and then the assembly disperses, each to his own home, unless it be some who have come from a distance, and stay to eat their cold pork and peas in the meeting house.—Atlantic Monthly.

Hooking Lucy's Gown.

"Well, just as I was ready to start away, down comes Lucy to the keepin' room, with both arms behind her head a-fixin' of the hooks an' eyes. 'Man alive,' said she, 'are you here yet? I thought you was off gunnin' an hour ago; and you still here.' 'Gunnin'?' says I; 'Lucy, my gunnin' is over. I shan't go no more now. I shall go home. I agree with you: shiverin' alone under a wet bush for hours is no fun; but if Lucy was there—' 'Get out,' said she, 'don't talk nonsense, Sam, and just fasten the other hook and eye of my frock, will you?' She turned round her back to me. Well, I took the hook in one hand and the eye in the other; but arth and seas! my eyes fairly snapped again—I never see such a neck since I was raised. It sprung out of the breast and shoulder full round, and then tapered up to the head like a swan's, and the complexion would beat the most delicate red and white rose that ever was seen. Lick, it made me all eyes. I just stood stock still; I couldn't move a finger if I was to die for it. 'What ails you, Sam?' says she, 'that you don't hook it?' 'Why,' says I, 'Lucy, dear, my fingers are all thumbs, that's a fact; I can't handle such little things as fast as you can.' 'Well, come,' says she, 'make haste, that's a dear; mother will be coming directly;' and at last I shut both my eyes, and fastened it; and when I had done, says I, 'There is one thing I must say, Lucy.' 'What's that?' says she. 'That you may stump all Connecticut to show such an angelifirous neck as you have—I never saw the beat of it in all my born days—it's the most——' 'And you may stump the State, too,' says she, 'to produce such another bold, forrad, impudent, ornamnerly tongue as you have—so there now—so get along with you.'"
